NEWPORT NEWS, VA., June 14.—Special:—To-day's game between Newport News and Hampton wound up in a squabble. Therney had pitched a beautiful game, allowing the visitors but two atts, and when Hampton went to the bat in the ninth inning the score stood 2 to 1 in favor of the Shio-Builders. Durrett got first on balls and scored legitimately, tieing the score. Mullany, on second, attempted to stead third. Rapp got the ball in time to put him out, but claims Mullany knocked it out of his hands. Umpire Tassiter called him safe. Allen hit an in time to put him out, but claims Mullanv knocked it out of his hands. Umpire man, O. H. Funsten, R. A. Lancaster, Jr., and N. R. Savage, directors.

A report was submitted from the Committee on Conventions requesting the Board of Directors to authorize this committee to extend an invitation in the name of the Chamber to a number of organizations which it was thought very desirable to have hold their next annual meetings in the city of Richmond. Upon motion of Mr. O. H. Funsten, the authority asked was given to the Committee on Conventions. In this connection an invitation having been already extended to the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, to hold its annual convention in Richmond in 1901, the Chaff was requested to appoint a suitable committee representing the Chamber, to attend the convention of Elks at Atlantic City in July, for the purpose of conventing with the committee represent Atlantic City in July, for the purpase

A VERY ABLE EFFORT.

The distinguished speaker, who is the Professor of English Litchature at the University of Virginia, was enthusiastically received, and held his audience spell-bound while he delivered one of the most scholarly and magnificent addresses ever heard by Richmond people for some time.

Dr. Kent chose for his subject "Lightheadedness and Lightheartedness." After expressing the pleasure it afforded him to address the graduating class of the Richmond High School, he took up his theme and handled it in a most eloquent and attractive manner.

"Intellectuality," said the speaker, "is a good thing, but one must know how to use 't."

He said that half the failures in life resulted from the fact that people did not shed the light they guthered a ong the pathway they tread.

"Intense heart wisdom," said the speaker, "saturated with human sympathy is the kind that people should cultivate, and that does the world good."

SHOULD SEEK PURE LIGHT.

He warned his hearers against the cheap literature of the time, and said that in seeking light the purest and highest order only should be considered.

The speaker closed with a brilliant peroration to the graduating class, and pointed out the splendid possibilities which lie before the young people of the age.
